

Community Hosts - Exemplar Blurb & Biography

Planning and Evaluating PD Community Blurb: [1,000 Character limit]

If you're responsible for advancing the planning and evaluating professional development in your school, join this community to connect and learn with others today!

Great PD not only identifies tools to improve teaching and learning, it accounts for the unique context of your school too. As a member of this community, you will be able to share and learn about tools and processes from your peers, whilst exploring how to adapt these ideas to your context for the greatest impact on learning at your school.

Effective PD needs to be timely. Therefore, each of our sessions will be tailored to your needs at that moment in time. Finally, by joining this community, you will be learning alongside some of the most dedicated and innovative educators in the region. Join us today! [778 Characters]

Community Host Biography: [800 Character limit]

Ewen Bailey is an experienced international leader in education who supports teachers and leaders to build resilient, collaborative teams focused on continuous improvement. Currently based in Singapore, Ewen has previously directed whole-school professional development for one of China's top IB World schools, where he fostered a collaborative culture of student-centered professional learning. During the pandemic, he led an innovative project with England's Department for Education and Oak National Academy that delivered high quality online training resources for thousands of initial teacher trainees and early career teachers.

He is now a cofounder of PeerSphere, a Peer Learning Network that builds thriving communities of educators and administrators throughout SE Asia and beyond.

[791 Characters]

